Fire and Water

Who says fire and water don't mix?

The people at the Kansas City Power & Light District called us to create fire in their fountains at Elements patio bar.

The waterfall fountains, located on either side of the patio bar, were installed in early 2008. The flame system consists of a main burner which is out of sight below the water and covered with stones. The only visible hardware is the ignition housing that sits just above the water level.

As with all of our flame effects, this system meets or exceeds the NFPA 160 standard as well as all other local and federal codes. Part of the compliance for this system was the installation of intrusion detectors which extinguish the flames immediately should a person enter the safety zone.

Once again we prove that fire and water do mix.
